“Louder Than Words”, 10 Essential Engagement Steps That Drive Results” to Engage Your Employees Engaged Employees = Profitable Results

An engaged workforce is a cultural transformation which must stand the test of time, in both boom and recessionary times. The “Louder than Words” presentation reinforces key steps that are necessary to sustain an engaged culture, improve business results, and maintain credibility with employees, while also reinforcing that success involves the “mutual commitment” of both leadership and employees.

“Making a Business Case for Employee Engagement”

The “Making a Business Case” presentation is ideal for organizations embarking on a cultural change. The presentation will arm attendees with quantitative evidence to support a business case for engagement (including the latest research, studies, and surveys to support the engagement investment). This overview will include key practices (“take-a-ways”) along with lessons learned.

"The Sustainable Organization" - 13 Trends Facing Today's Leaders

This multi media presentation outlines today's most pressing workforce trends including workforce demographic changes, generational differences (the impact of Gen Y), globalization, employee engagement, corporate social responsibility, social networks, and innovation. In these economic times this speech is especially relevant as it reminds leaders that they need to balance the realities of today with the sustainable organizational needs of tomorrow.

"Leadership Lessons from Ernest Shackleton"

This dynamic presentation utilizes video and facilitation to highlight the key leadership principles of the famed Antarctic explorer Ernest Shackleton. An early pioneer of employee engagement, Shackleton proved in 1914 that a combination of vision, careful staff selection, inspirational leadership, diligent planning, and organization can overcome even the most extreme challenges. “Leadership Lessons” proves to be helpful as a teambuilding event, or before a team tackles a difficult problem or assignment.
